City National Bank of Florida (CNB) officially marked the grand opening of its new Brickell Banking Center during a recent evening reception for city and civic officials, business executives and clients.

The event also celebrated the 100th anniversary of Brickell Avenue, which lends its name to America's most recognized financial district after Wall Street.

City National Bank expanded its high-touch personal service and best-in-class client experience to Miami's international banking and business center at its Brickell Banking Center, serving downtown area businesses and residents. Situated in the LEED Certified Gold 1450 Brickell Ave. building, the new banking center brings City National Bank's total number of locations in Florida to more than two dozen.

The banking center is the most recent indication of CNB's growth and expansion in both services and locations during the past year. The bank's 65-year heritage as the personalized banking team for customers across South Florida and beyond is built upon core values that encompass best-in-class client experience, its people, teamwork, integrity, embracing change, and performing as a high performance company.

"Since William and Mary Brickell first envisioned this area as Miami's economic engine, it has grown into a premier business and finance district. We are pleased to expand our presence on Brickell, South Florida's most prestigious financial center," said Jorge Gonzalez, City National Bank president and CEO.

One of South Florida's most stable and reliable banks, CNB prides itself on being large enough to give clients what they want, but small enough to do it the way clients want it. Bank professionals embrace the communities they serve and provide a diverse array of financial products and personal services to small businesses, corporate and commercial clients, and individuals.
